Barcelona is hiding its secrets in plain sight — and you've been chosen for the team that will uncover them.

Your colleagues are counting on you. Consider yourself the missing piece.

Before you close this invitation, ask yourself one question: when did you last do something with your colleagues that you'll still be talking about a year from now?

Somewhere between the Cathedral, Plaça Reial and La Rambla, Barcelona hides a bridge no king ever walked, Roman columns tucked away in a courtyard and a dragon guarding an umbrella that will never open. The answers are carved in stone and hidden in details most people walk straight past.

You've been selected for one of the teams taking on the challenge. The team that works together best wins. What counts is a sharp eye, quick wits — and the people you usually just share an office with.

NO APP TO INSTALL

You'll hold a real game kit in your hands.

Each team gets a map, a booklet of clues and riddles, and a list of photo challenges. All you need is one phone per team, comfortable shoes — and your colleagues.

THREE THINGS WE CAN REVEAL (FOR NOW)

The Gothic Quarter is your game board

Medieval lanes, grand squares and hidden courtyards all become part of the game. You'll never see Barcelona the same way again.

Your team, your strategy

Nobody plays alone. Observation, logic and intuition — you'll find out which colleague is secretly a detective.

Suspense without strain

No climbing, no running — just an easy walk through mostly pedestrian streets. The suspense comes from the riddles.

DURATION	PACE	FITNESS	BRING
2.5–3 hours	An easy walk	Suitable for everyone	1 phone per team

WHEN & WHERE

Your organiser will send you the date, start time and meeting point. Just bring good shoes and your curiosity.

> "We had a great time during the team building activity. Everyone enjoyed themselves and it was nice to have the ceremony with the gifts at the end."
>
> Lily Metta, Sojern

See you in the streets of Barcelona?